

Notice of cancellation of the 131st Annual Meeting of the JFS
In Response to the Spread of New Coronavirus Infections

February 26, 2020

To Members of the Japanese Forest Society and Prospective participants of the 131st Annual JFS Meeting.

Nagoya University, which was scheduled to be the main venue of the meeting, notified on February 26, 2020 that it stops lending the venue to any conferences and meetings to be held in March because of the spread of new coronavirus infections. In response to this decision of Nagoya University, the extraordinary Board of Directors of JFS decided to cancel the 131st Annual JFS Meeting.

We are currently examining the handling of the presentation records, the registration fee, and the abstracts of the 131st Annual JFS Meeting. As soon as it is decided, it will be notified on the website of the Japanese Forest Society and by e-mail.

We are sorry for the inconvenience to those who are planning to participate the meeting. We appreciate your understanding and cooperation.
